

WEDNESDAY EVE., DEC. 15, 1886.

The Ashland Independent says there is some talk of Judge Sam Savage being the next postmaster at that place.

The Prohibitionists and "Reform" party of this State will hold a mass convention at Louisville, March 3, 1887, to nominate candidates for Governor and other State officers.

The editor of the Ashland Independent is a regular "jumping-jack." We pulled the string some time ago, and his gyrations are amusing in the extreme. Poor old man! His wisdom doesn't increase with his years.

The three-year-old trotter Wild Rake, that created such a stir among horsemen the past season, has been sold by his owners, the Bryan brothers, of Lexington, to William Rockefeller, of New York, for $7,500. Wild Rake trotted in one or two rings at our fair last August and was an easy winner. He afterwards defeated the sensational Bermuda, Nutbreaker and the California Sphinx.

Captain Thomas H. Hines, late Judge of the Court of Appeals, has formally announced his intention to run for Governor, and the Democrats will have an opportunity to consider his claims. Judge Hines won distinction on the Appellate Bench. His candidacy will have a blighting effect upon General Buckner's "boom," but the Hon. John D. Harris, of Madison, views the contest with a confident smile.

Sam Walton's Good Luck.

A special from Washington, D. C., says: "Still another young unarmed Kentuckian gets there this morning and comes up smiling. Sam Walton secures the Chief's place in the First Comptroller's office, at $2,100 per annum. The Republican (an old man named Clark) who has held the situation handed in his resignation this morning. Mr. Walton goes in Monday to learn the duties. He will work a week or so, go home for the holidays, and return with the New Year to remain a child of the republic. He went to the State Department today and formally declined the Asuncion Consulate. Minister Jarvis is back from Brazil, and reports the cholera caving around South America at a lively rate."

OUR NEIGHBORS.

WASHINGTON.

George Taylor started Tuesday with a nice bunch of hogs to Cincinnati.

Miss Nellie D. Wood left yesterday for Philadelphia, Pa., on a visit to relatives.

The remains of Uncle Jimmie Key were buried in the cemetery here last Thursday.

Mr. W. R. Gill and family have returned home after a long and pleasant visit in Missouri.

William Bickley and "Boss" Bland killed last week, in less than two hours, sixty rabbits. They saw a flock of forty wild geese.

The young folks had quite a nice party at Mrs. James Marshall's last Friday night. Miss Mamie S. Ott, of Maysville, was in attendance.

There will be an entertainment for the benefit of the Christian Church, Wednesday night, December 22nd. J. C. A. King's little daughter will be the prima donna. This is an opportunity for all to see and hear this little wonder.

ABERDEEN ITEMS.

Big boom Saturday.

Sir Peter Huff is always on hand. Accommodating and moderate in charges, his motto.

Mrs. S. P. Campbell and daughter returned from quite a lengthy visit to Cincinnati relatives Wednesday last.

Master John Purdon delivers the DAILY BULLETIN promptly. Subscribers will report at the drug store if they do not get the paper regularly.

The grandest musical event ever known in Aberdeen will be the concert given by Maueke's celebrated band for benefit of M. E. Church, Thursday, December 31st. Tickets on sale Saturday.

Pearce Brothers Milling Company are shipping their purchase of wheat from here to their mill this week. They have bought 40,000 bushels here, and supplied every one with their finely celebrated flour.

At the regular annual meeting of Aberdeen Lodge No. 149, A. F. and A. M., the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. M.—M. C. Ellis
S. W.—Scott Spears
J. W.—T. C. Carr
Secretary—T. Heston
Treasurer—J. W. Cheeseman
S. D.—Jesse Ellis
J. D.—Morris Warren
S. and T.—W. R. Ellis.

Good Results in Every Case.

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial bottle free at the drug stores of J. C. Peacor & Co., and S. P. Campbell & Co., of Aberdeen Ohio.

THE ART OF TEA TASTING.

Methods of an Expert in the Business. Chat with One of the Craft.

When the cargoes of teas arrive on this side, millions on millions of pounds, the tea tasters, or tasters, work begins. It is an art, and remarkable skill is attained by those who have the natural faculty for it, and have developed that faculty by long experience and careful training. There are so many elements or factors entering into the process and shaping the conclusion of the tea taster that it is impossible to describe them, and perhaps the most proficient taster of teas could not enumerate them—in fact, is not conscious of them. The expert in wool cannot explain how he distinguishes between two grades of wool which to an ordinary man are identical, but his touch is unerring and his judgment accurate. So the tea taster works often as much by intuition as by rule. He has equipped himself to operate in the realm of nice distinctions, and he is perfectly at home there. He cannot be cheated. How do tea tasters go to work? A big round table of considerable solidity, which whirled easily on a pivoted center. Temptingly set about the edge of this revolving table one observes an array of tea-cups more or less aesthetic in mold and adornment, according to the "style" of the establishment.

Generally, however, these important tea sets are for service not for show. A generous teakettle is stuck somewhere in a convenient corner, and it keeps up a pleasant purring over the patient gas jet. When the tea taster is in full armor the cups are manipulated deftly; as much tea as will balance a five-cent piece is put into each cup, and the same quantity of water is poured over each sample of tea. Then the acute sense of the tea taster sweeps the field. It must not be supposed that this continuous taster of teas drinks hogsheads of the samples, or even that he drinks at all. The tea taster does not necessarily put a cup to his lips. Tea is tested to some extent by the appearance of the leaf, but chiefly by infusion, as just described. It is the sense of smell that does the business. Said a tea taster:

"Everything tastes as it smells. I have heard it said that if a man's nostrils could be held perfectly tight, he could not determine by his palate which of two substances, a piece of raw potato or onion, was placed in his mouth. At any rate, I can determine a quality or grade of tea as perfectly by smell as by taste, and all the best tasters judge by the smell."

Without infusion the taster can often determine just how a sample of tea will draw by the peculiar twist of the leaf and its smell.

"Can you carry in your memory the different grades or kinds of tea so as to identify them if the same comes up again, after the lapse of some time?"

"To a considerable extent we can. If there is anything peculiar about a kind or lot of tea, we remember it, and can pick it out at once if it ever comes up again. Of course, the standard classes of teas are always recognized at once by an expert."

"Is tea tasting injurious?"

"No, not at all. There are some men who are somewhat affected by it so that they are restless at night, after having gone through with a cargo of tea, but it never affects me at all. In fact, tea tasting cannot be so harmful as the constant tasting of sugars, etc. While on this point it is a somewhat significant fact to note that nearly all tea tasters drink Congou tea. It is the finest tea and least injurious. Another thing, the secret of giving satisfaction in teas is the furnishing of an article that is of good strength and body. That is the kind of tea which suits our people."—Boston Herald.

VICTIMS OF THE FIRE.

One of the Bodies Taken From the Ruins of the St. Louis Fire.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15.—The work of removing the debris of the Shapleigh-Cantwell fire continued up to a late hour last night and the searchers for the bodies of the two victims were rewarded by finding a portion of that of the clerk, Arthur W. Palmer, who was known to have perished in the flames. One of the workmen turned up with his pick a pair of shoes, crushed out of shape and somewhat charred.

A heavy weight had rested upon them and through the open cracks in the leather, and where the upper was partially torn away from the sole, crushed and bloody flesh protruded, half charred by the fierce heat to which it had been subjected. The feet had evidently been entirely broken from the legs and the body carried to a lower level, for no other portions of the body were found at the time. The shoes were evidently those of Palmer, for they were found at about the spot where his desk would have fallen in the crash, and it is known that Palmer had the same kind of shoes. No portion of the body of Mahen, the porter, has been found.

A New Scheme in Electricity.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—It is reported that experiments are now being made in this city, which, if successful, will result in the cable cars on the North Side being heated by electricity next winter. The story goes that a well known street railroad magnate, who once hailed from Philadelphia, brought his hand in contact with the globe of an incandescent lamp a few weeks ago and to his surprise found it very hot. This started a train of thought and he finally concluded that if an electric conductor could be made to give forth a white heat it could also be made to radiate into a red heat. Experiments are said to be in progress on this line and it is asserted that the cars will be both lighted and heated by electricity a year from now.

A Poor Girl's Luck.

DETROIT, Dec. 15.—Miss Setti Postle, living with her parents in destitute circumstances in this city, has received word from a firm in Norwich, England, that she has fallen heir to $50,000, half of a fortune left by an uncle who recently died in Austria.

Stanley Will Sail for Home.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 15.—Henry M. Stanley lectured here last night. At the close of his talk he said that in obedience to orders from the king of Belgium he would sail for Europe on Wednesday morning.

Is the Jury Crooked?

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The Sun says that evidence was presented to the grand jury yesterday that Juror Rosenberg, of the McQuade jury, is a personal friend of John Keenan and of Alderman Farley. The Sun expresses the fear that the jury is "fixed."

The Y. M. C. A. Convention.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—In accordance with the San Francisco association, the twenty-seventh international convention of the Young Men's Christian associations will be held in that city early in May, 1887.
